The drives of economic growth are permanently changing, and Romania's accession to EU must accelerate knowledge based economic development. The globalization of companies' economic activities highlights the need for adequate actions on companies' financial management. The selection of the financial performance ratios that may help as the base of the financial management systems both knowledge oriented and aiming to increase value, are essential for the companies that want to go beyond their competitors. The pertinence and predictive use of financial performance ratios depend on the rules that direct the functioning of financial markets.
